

POEMS ABOUT THE SEASONS AND NATURE

The Forest

Thick dark trees,
Plump kiwis with beady eyes
Which illuminate the dark surroundings.
The rustling leaves drifting down
Towards the forest floor -
Possum traps everywhere,
Curly koru curling up.
chirping from the trees above
As fantails flutter, returning to their nests -
Night has fallen.

©Imogen Rehu 9 yrs Kenakena School Paraparaumu Beach

Amber Autumn

The lake is calm,
The sun is glistening,
No one in sight
No one is listening.
Listen now,
The breeze is calling,
The trees now bow -
Now the leaves are falling.

©Shariah Clark 10 yrs Karapiro/Cambridge Middle School

Seasons

The snow keeps on falling,
Birds no longer calling,
A blanket of snow thrown over
The green grass and clover.

Buds are opening on the trees,
Flowers and plants are buzzing with bees.
Day by day lambs are born,
We watch them play on our back lawn.

Waves are crashing over the rocks
Pushing the boats against the docks.
The summer sun is beating down
As I wander through the town.

Leaves are drifting through the air,
Some are captured in my hair.
Animals start to hibernate -
Kids no longer stay up late.

©Julia Manning 10 yrs Marian School Hamilton

