

Help - Dad Is Telling Jokes

My Dad he tells some awful jokes,
The worst I've ever heard.
A few of them are passable
But most are plain absurd.

When my friends come visiting
He asks, "Have you heard the one?"
They say "no" to be polite,
But you can tell they want to run.

Nothing seems to stop him
When he gets on a roll
He has a joke about everything
Or a story to be told.

I say, "Dad, you're not amusing,
Please will you leave my room."
He briefly stops to draw breath
Then his terrible jokes resume.

If his jokes weren't bad enough
He wears this silly wig,
I wail, "Dad, that is embarrassing,
It's a party, not a gig."

Last week a miracle happened
When Grandma came to stay -
Dad started to tell a stupid joke,
"Excuse me, What did you say?"

Joe, take that silly wig off
You're looking like a fool.
Start acting like an adult
Not a five year old at school."

Dad suddenly stopped and listened
He knew that he'd been snapped.
He took the wig off and slunk away,
Us kids stood up and clapped.

"Thank you Grandma, you were great,
Now we can have some fun."
"Before you go kids, I want to ask,
Have you heard the one....."

Imagine if Dad had been twins!
